WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]

Mrs. Tracy, the wife of Secretary Tracy, Miss Mary Tracy, his youngest daughter, and Josephine, a French maid, were killed in the fire which destroyed the secretary's residence yesterday morning. Secretary Tracy is lying in a stupor, suffering from the effects of inhaling smoke. Mrs. Willmerding, eldest daughter of the secretary, is in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from a strained wrist. Miss Alice Willmerding, 13 years of age, the secretary's granddaughter, is suffering from the shock she received.

It was about 7 o'clock in the morning when flames were seen issuing from the windows and roof of Secretary Tracy's house, situated on the corner of Broadway and Third streets, northwest, and the neighborhood had not yet awoke, and all around was still. Within the residence not a sound was heard except the crackling of the flames, as with great tongues they came out of the windows on the top floor. Soon the front door of the mansion was opened, and two servants rushed out to see what was the matter. A French maid, Josephine, was seen running in white gown appeared at the windows. The fire gained headway rapidly, and although the fire department responded promptly the residence was soon enveloped in flames.

MRS. TRACY LEAPS FROM A WINDOW.
Secretary and Mrs. Tracy occupied a back room in the second story. Mrs. Tracy, it is thought, was first awakened by the crackling of the flames. The secretary was at this time unconscious, and Mrs. Tracy, with heroic devotion, attempted to drag the body of the secretary to the window. This she was partially successful in doing. Half rescued and blinded by smoke she opened the window just as the firemen were putting up a ladder to rescue her and leaped to the sidewalk. Her body was picked up with severe internal injuries and a broken leg. She was taken to a neighboring house and without recovery succumbed to her wounds. A French maid, Josephine, was seen running in white gown appeared at the windows. The fire gained headway rapidly, and although the fire department responded promptly the residence was soon enveloped in flames.

The bridge over Sucoo creek on the Oregon coast, from north to south as it formerly stood, but remains almost intact. Little damage having been done to it. All travel across the creek is done now by skiff.

Indian Pete Shot Dead in West Seattle—An Unexpected Assault.

Early this morning a party of Indians arrived from West Seattle in a canoe, bringing with them the dead body of a young Indian named Pete, who had been murdered the night before by a white man, whose name could not be learned. The Indians told the following story about the shooting: Last night about 10 o'clock four white men visited their camp and tried to force an old Indian and his squaw to drink whisky. They refused, and the white men hit the old man with the butt of his pistol, severely injuring him. The Indians made an outcry, and their companions in adjoining tents rushed to their assistance and a free fight took place. During the row one of the white men fired a revolver, and the Indian named Pete was killed. The four white men fled, and have not been yet captured, although the police are instituting vigilant search. It is thought the men went to Tacoma.

Drifting Off the Coast of Newfoundland, the Masts Gone and Nobody Aboard.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]—The fishing schooner Newfoundland, reported having sighted, while off the coast of Newfoundland, a full-rigged ship drifting at the mercy of the waves. All the masts were gone, and the vessel seemed to be rolling heavily and on the point of sinking. There was no sign of life aboard. Owing to the heavy sea which was running at the time, the Newfoundland could not approach near enough to make out the vessel. There is much anxiety in the United States as to what vessel it may be. No vessel answering the description is overdue at any Atlantic port.

WHAT SHIP WAS THIS?

Drifting Off the Coast of Newfoundland, the Masts Gone and Nobody Aboard.

New York, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]—The fishing schooner Newfoundland, reported having sighted, while off the coast of Newfoundland, a full-rigged ship drifting at the mercy of the waves. All the masts were gone, and the vessel seemed to be rolling heavily and on the point of sinking. There was no sign of life aboard. Owing to the heavy sea which was running at the time, the Newfoundland could not approach near enough to make out the vessel. There is much anxiety in the United States as to what vessel it may be. No vessel answering the description is overdue at any Atlantic port.

MAMIE DISLIKED MENIAL WORK.

For Keweenaw Is Now in the Chain-Gang—Mamie Bucknell, the young girl who ran away from her home in Centralia with a man named Dole, has been induced to return home. She says she was forced to do all the menial work for the family, and that her stepmother abused her and influenced her father against her. She will be of age the last of this month, and will then marry Dole, with whom she professes to be greatly in love. Dole is unable to pay his fine, and is working it out in the chain-gang.

Special Rates to Aid the Phoenix.

TACOMA, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]—Officers of the Northern Pacific have decided to again put in effect reduced rates on all building materials to Spokane Falls. Beginning March 1 the same rates will be put into effect that were in operation last fall after the 1st of January. The rates will be in effect until June 1, and will include lumber, lath, shingles, lime, blinds, sash, doors, etc.

OTYMPIA, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]—In the supreme court: M. Bratten vs. Charles Lewis; case in hearing.

THE HOUSE LOSES ITSELF.

All Tangled Up in the Intricacies of Parliamentary Law.

OLYMPIA, Feb. 4.—[Special Telegram.]—The house seems to be vying with the national house of representatives in the matter of confusion. It could not possibly get into a worse tangle than the one which related to the resolution of the house first reconsidered the vote by which it adopted the adverse report of the railroad committee on Clemens' maximum rate bill. After Blair's resolution referring the four bills under consideration in committee of the whole yesterday to a special committee had been passed, it was moved to go into committee of the whole to consider the four bills. McKeary maintained that the bills were still before the committee of the whole and that it would require a two-thirds vote to suspend the regular order of business and take them up. Evans held that the house could not go into committee of the whole to consider new bills on second reading when the house was working under the head of propositions and motions. The chair held that Judson's motion was in order, whereupon Evans appealed to the house.

When the house met to-day it reconsidered the vote by which Senator Long's bill to validate deeds to real estate was last Friday. The rules admit of a motion to reconsider at any time, and the day has not passed. The speaker held that as no resolution was held Saturday the legislative day had not passed. Speaker Feighan offered an amendment providing that the bill shall not validate titles to public lands attempted to be conveyed by the territory of Washington. It was thought by many members that the purpose of the bill was to validate the title to the lands sold by the old territorial university commission, which are now in dispute. The amendment was adopted. The house was weary and voted the bill down.

The senate to-day passed Senator Fairweather's bill bonding the state for $300,000 to fund the debt inherited from the territory.

The joint committee will leave in a few days to inspect the Washington school for defective youth at Vancouver.

Representative Randall left to-day for Spokane Falls. He may proceed to Washington on business relative to the opening of the Lewis and Clark route. He has been a member of the committee on the Lewis and Clark route, and Stevenson takes his place.

The house judiciary committee agreed to-night to recommend an indefinite postponement of Grant's bill requiring detectives doing business in the state to have a license.

Publication by THE OREGONIAN of the interview with Senator Fairweather offering a practical proposition to the hold-over senators, created a sensation in legislative circles, and has been the topic of conversation all day. Many senators are favorably disposed to it, as it will insure at least sixteen republican senators in the next legislature. Republican leaders will not, however, be so easily won over. The legislature will contain a large number of democrats, and they will take no chances of losing their ascendancy in the legislature, which they would jeopardize if the entire senate were assigned, as suggested by Judge Turner, to solve the vexed question.

The committee on revenue and taxation held a four hours' session this evening, and determined to report to-morrow the Harris bill relative to publishing a list of taxpayers in each county, and the recommendation of Nuss's bill appointing a public examiner will be indefinitely postponed, it being in the judgment of the committee, inadvisable at this time to make an appropriation for the office.

McKeary is now appointing a commissioner will be reported favorably, and Kinnear's bill, defining the duties of state treasurer, also. The committee will, to-morrow night, consider the code bill. The prevailing impression now is that the bill will be adopted, though it will have decided opposition from Drum and Long, members of the committee.

The joint committee on tidelands held a brief session this morning, and a majority of the members looked with favor on Senator Austin's bill, the principal provisions of which have already been given. Senators Austin and Van Houten, and Representatives Brownie of Pierce, Kula and Gandy were designated as a sub-committee to draft a bill. They held a four-hour session to-night, but were not so much in favor ## of the Austin bill as the joint committee was. The difference of opinion was principally on the matter of management. The Austin bill asks the public lands commissioner to sell the tidelands, and creates boards of appraisement. Van Houten and Gandy wanted to put the sale of tidelands under the supervision of a state board. Austin is for a public land commissioner, but has no objection to the state board plan, and is willing to fall in with it. Brown and Kula stood out for county boards of appraisement in each county, which shall be responsible to a state board of equalization. Van Houten is decidedly opposed to the Brown-Kula method, as he thinks it would be offering an inducement to jobbery. But those interested in the tideland question would strive to control the county board, and the one who had the most money would carry off the plum. It is doubtful whether the committee will ever agree unanimously on either of the proposed plans, and it is probable that a compromise will be effected by creating a state board of five members, composed of state officers and outsiders, and county boards of appraisement, to be appointed by the governor. The committee did not consider the provision giving auditing owners equitable rights.

Representative Hurren, of Lewis, was in his seat, for the first time in two weeks, to-day. He has been attending court in Lewis county.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Expense of a Committee Journey—An item in the bill of New House.

When the house met the income asylum committee presented a claim for $400 for mileage, covering the recent trip. It was referred to the ways and means committee. A number of independent military companies petitioned for additional regimental districts, and reduction of the regular staff to the minimum. They also request that non-commissioned officers and privates be paid 50 cents, and commissioned officers the regular army salary when in actual service. The petition was referred to the military committee.
